Dear Steve,

I'm glad I can help you with your project on famous singers. Well, my favourite singer is Dima Bilan. He made his debut at the festival "New Wave" in 2002 so he has already been singing for six years. Now Dima is a famous pop singer known for his songs like "Never Let You Go", "Believe". I enjoy his songs because of his beautiful voice. Unfortunately, I've never been to his concerts but I'd love to.

Thanks a lot for your letter. Sounds like you had a great time in London! What impressed you most of all? Did you take any pictures? Were you tired?

Anyway, let me know if you have any other questions. I'd better go now. There is a film starting in a minute. Write soon!

Dear Steve,

I'm glad I can help you with your project on famous singers. Well, my favourite singer is Dima Bilan. He made his debut at the festival "New Wave" in 2002 so he has already been singing for six years. Now Dima is a famous pop singer known for his songs like "Never Let You Go", "Believe". I enjoy his songs because of his beautiful voice. Unfortunately, I've never been to his concerts but I'd love to.

Thanks a lot for your letter. Sounds like you had a great time in London! What impressed you most of all? Did you take any pictures? Were you tired?

Anyway, let me know if you have any other questions. I'd better go now. There is a film starting in a minute. Write soon!

III. Read the text and do the tasks.

A soldier sent home a map with a pin-prick at the place of his dislocation. Their (1) mothers or wives held up those maps to the light and saw where the pin-prick was. The system wasn't very successful because the censors understood everything very quickly. They (2) let the maps go through but first (5) they made hundreds of pin-pricks on them to confuse the people who received them.

The Climate

1. Like the scenery, the climate is not remarkable. The winters are mild and the summers not particularly warm, judged by Continental standards. A joker once said that the English climate was the best in the world, but the weather was terrible. The weather is certainly rather unpredictable, and yet in a way this gives it a charm of its own – which you may not appreciate if you are caught in a shower of rain without a waterproof, or find yourself driving in a thick fog along the M1.

2. Why is the climate so mild, even though the British Isles are situated as far north as, for example, Labrador? One reason is the Gulf Stream, and prevailing westerly winds (or south-westerly) from the Atlantic, and another is the fact that Britain is an island.

3. The result is that on practically every day of the year, in every season, English people have always been able to spend part of the time out of doors. And perhaps it explains why the English are so fond of games and have invented so many different ways of amusing themselves in the open air. It certainly explains why they build their houses the way they do. Snow and frost are not the permanent feature of the winter scene to most Englishmen, nor is it ever so warm in summer that people have to take a siesta, as they do, for instance, in Italy and Spain.

4. The Britons do, however, tend to fool themselves a little about the prevailing mildness of the climate. Very occasionally an easterly wind from the Continent brings a cold type of weather which may persist for several days or weeks. This is when the water-pipes always freeze because of outside plumbing (a foreigner who timidly suggests that it would be more sensible to build houses with internal plumbing gets the maddening answer that it is much easier to have the water-pipes on the outside so that they are accessible when do freeze).

5. Perhaps the most typically English season is spring, when the country is putting on its gay coat of colours after the grabness of winter. Foreigners are astonished at the beauty of the parks, the greenness of the fields and soft colours that are part of this season, which is the theme of so much of England's best known poetry, from the Elizabethan "Sweet lovers love the spring" to Browning's "Oh to be in England now that April's there".

TEXT

1. Elizabeth I was the longest-reigning English monarch in nearly two centuries and the first woman who successfully occupied the English throne. Called Glorianna and Good Queen Bess, Elizabeth enjoyed enormous popularity during her life and became an even greater legend after her death.

Elizabeth's parents were disappointed when she was born. They desperately wanted a son. But Elizabeth eventually became one of England's greatest rulers.

2. Elizabeth's reign was marked by her effective use of Parliament and the Privy Council, a small advisory body of the important state officials. She also developed legal institutions in the English counties. Elizabeth firmly established Protestantism in England. She set up a new Church of England that pleased most of her people.

3. Elizabeth encouraged English enterprise and commerce. During Elizabeth's reign, England expanded trade overseas and as a result the merchant community grew. Private shipbuilding boomed and navigational advances made long sea voyages safer that led to establishing the first English outposts in North America.

4. In 1587 the Spanish king Philip began organizing an immense naval fleet, the Spanish Armada, for a direct attack upon England. The defeat of the armada was one of the great achievements of Queen Elizabeth I. It established the glory of the English navy and inspired merchants and explorers toward colonization of a wider world.

5. Elizabeth's reign was noted for the English Renaissance. An outpouring of poetry and drama led by William Shakespeare, Edmund Spenser, and Christopher Marlowe remains unsurpassed in English literary history. She was the last of the Tudor monarchs, never marrying or producing an heir, and was succeeded by her cousin, James VI of Scotland.

ATLANTIC COLLEGE

Last week I went to visit Atlantic College, an excellent private college in Wales. Unusually it gives young people much needed experience of life outside the classroom as well as the opportunity to study for their exams. The students who are aged between 16 and 18 and from all over the world spend the morning studying. In the afternoon they go out and do a really useful activity, such as helping on the farm, looking after people with learning difficulties, or checking for pollution in rivers.

One of the great things about Atlantic College students is that they come from many different social backgrounds and countries. As few can afford the fees of 20,000 pounds over two years, grants are available. A quarter of the students are British and many of those can only attend because they receive government help.

‘I really admire the college for trying to encourage international understanding among young people’, as Barbara Molenkamp, a student from the Netherlands, said. ‘You learn to live with people and respect them even the ones you don’t like. During the summer holidays my mother couldn’t believe how much less I argued with my sister’.

To sum up Atlantic College gives its students an excellent education using methods which really seem to work.

4. Dear Sir,

25. Read the text and do the tasks:

At School.

State (non fee-paying) schools.

1. Elizabeth was visiting a big new secondary school. In one class the pupils were working in small groups. They examined original copies of documents. "We're teaching the pupils to find out about history themselves instead of getting it second-hand from books", the head master explained.

2. During the break Elizabeth stood in the playground and watched children. The younger ones were playing. The other students stood in groups chattering. A group of 16 ear old was walking out of school gate with a teacher.

"They are going to visit a factory to see how computers are used in the design process".

3. The day before Elizabeth has visited a school in a really tough district found it difficult to make the children learn anything. The first things she had noticed was the badly-spelled graffiti on many of the walls. In the first classroom thirty children sat in rows. The teacher was writing a list of important historical dates on the blackboard and the children had to learn them by heart.

Most of them looked bored. The headmaster showed Elizabeth a part of school that had been destroyed by fire. The fire had been stopped by a boy of fifteen.

4. Both the schools that she visited were state schools but the differences between them are not surprising for two reasons. First, one school was in a prosperous area of Southern England, while the other was in an area with many social problems.

5. Secondly, education in Britain is not as centralized as it is in many other countries. The Central Department of Education and Science in London guides, advises and inspects, but England and Wales are divided into 82 independant Local Educational Authorities. Much of the guidance and organization of education is done by these Local Authorities. Each School also has a board of unpaid governors or managers who are Local people. They and the teachers have a certain amount of freedom to decide how children are taught.
